

QC30 Violence Risk Assessment and Management

This training focuses on working clinically with consumers at risk of becoming violent or aggressive. The course also covers important aspects of Queensland Health policy relating to the assessment and management of violence, including the Assessing and Responding to Violence framework (the Framework).

After completing the pre-requisite QC57 Introduction to Violence Risk Assessment and Management (VRAM) eLearning, which provides information on key components of the Framework (i.e. Tier 2) and the VRAM tool, participants progress to this comprehensive workshop which reinforces the content through experiential learning.

The workshop focuses entirely on applying knowledge gained in the eLearning to an immersive scenario example. This is designed to be interactive and responsive to clinician decisions made on the day.

A comprehensive Online Resource Hub is also included which provides tip sheets relating to areas such as useful links and resources, barriers in completing a V-RAM and strategies for overcoming them, support for writing violence risk summaries, and useful policy documents.

Note: Completion of QC57 An Introduction to VRAM (eLearning) is a pre-requisite before enrolment in this workshop is possible.

Anticipated learning outcomes:

- describe the three-tiered approach to violence risk assessment and management within the Framework
- identify important information to collect as part of a violence risk assessment, as well as strategies to achieve this
- write a structured risk summary in a manner which integrates important assessment information, and demonstrates the current level of violence risk (including the rationale behind this clinical judgement)
- create a comprehensive prevention-oriented violence risk management plan, which is clearly linked to the risk summary
- complete V-RAM documentation in CIMHA
- apply the principles of the Framework to inform judgements regarding whether to escalate an assessment to Tier 3.
