Nick	I think they're in such a rhythm, and it's only a team of three. And I'm the third one coming in now. And they've got like a really nice flow to things and their own way of doing it. And one of my colleagues is on the computer doing his notes. And the other one is kind of there looking at the care reviews and all that kind of stuff on the other computer. And I'm kind of just sitting there without a computer, without too much there for myself and feeling like I'm not part of the process. And then the psychiatrist who's there, who often has final say on things, and she just kind of listens in and hears things. And I think the challenge for me is probably being assertive enough to kind of put my stamp on it, as I said. And even sometimes, I want to say something. And they're talking. And I just kind of just sit there.
Martin	Yeah.
